School Closure

Distance learning hub launch

Today we close the school until further notice for most of our students. There was a strange yet nice atmosphere around the school this last week, and we enjoyed seeing the S7's celebrate the end of their school journey today.

We have received some very positive messages of thanks throughout the week and these kind words of support are very gratefully received by staff, so thank you.

We will send separate information to children of key workers and any children that are considered vulnerable. School will reopen for them from Tuesday.

All students will receive instructions with a timetable and some - we hope helpful - guidelines.

The aim of distance learning is to continue to educate your children in the best way possible under difficult circumstances.

The work set will be reasonable and hopefully will enable students to bring in some routine and structure to their daily lives, whilst we all adjust to these new conditions.

If the student is struggling then please speak to their form tutor or contact secondary@europaschool.uk. We are still here to listen and support the children and their parents.

We will continue to send through a weekly newsletter to share news and to remind us all that we are still a special community. If you have any ideas or photos of home learning or any tips you would like to share then please send them through.

Our staff is looking into setting up special challenges. So please stay tuned!

Distance Timetables

The school appreciates everyone's enthusiasm to get started with the distance learning timetables. We will share them with the students on Monday afternoon.

Monday is a staff training day, so there will be no classes for the students and the exciting distance learning launch will be on Tuesday.

S7 Goodbye for now

Quite a few tears were shed when we all got together to say goodbye to our brilliant S7 cohort. We hope we will see you all soon again!

Although we are saddened by the abrupt ending to our S7 year we could not be more thankful for the memories shared at this school and the support that they have given us at this difficult time. Europa School holds a special place in our hearts and we would like to thank all staff as well as students for this amazing school experience and day!

The S7s decided they should try outdoor philosophy today. Allegedly Mr McFarland is still looking for them.
