Career's advice

If you think you might be interested in a career as an Allied Health Professional, or you want to know what an Allied Health Professional is then iseethedifference.co.uk have information on lots of different allied health careers and are providing free webinars for students from Primary to S7.

Projects at home

It has been a great challenge for our teachers and our students to adapt from classroom to distance teaching and learning, and I am so impressed with how they have risen to meet this so positively.

As teachers are developing their use of technology, using a range of online resources and thinking creatively to set projects that engage and challenge students, it has been incredibly exciting to see how students have responded, demonstrating their individuality and creativity. We are planning to develop more project-based learning in the coming weeks.

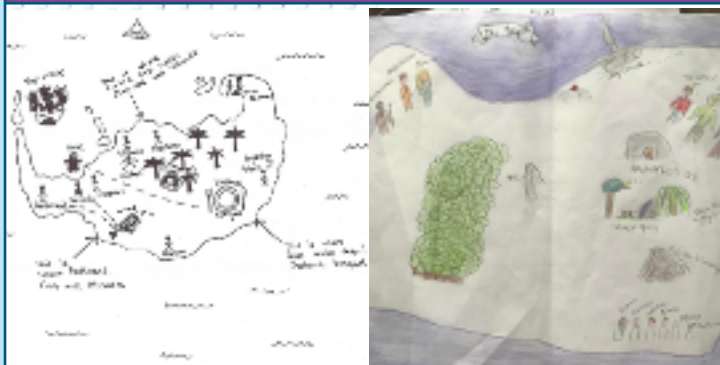

I would therefore like to take this opportunity to celebrate some examples of the tasks that teachers have set and – more importantly – the wonderful and inventive ways that students have responded reflecting their creativity and energy. There are too many examples to share here so we added some more to the website. We look forward to seeing more such work in the coming weeks and to finding ways to showcase it.

Many thanks to all staff for their dedication, to all students for your hard work and, of course, to all parents for your ongoing support.

Shakespeare's The Tempest S1F

Thou art...

Thou art a beef-witted blossom, a dog-hearted coxcomb,

Thou art a dizzy-eyed bladder, which maketh thou sadder.

Thou art a fly-bitten horn-beast more worthless than grease,

Thou art an elf-skinned gill with a voice very shrill.

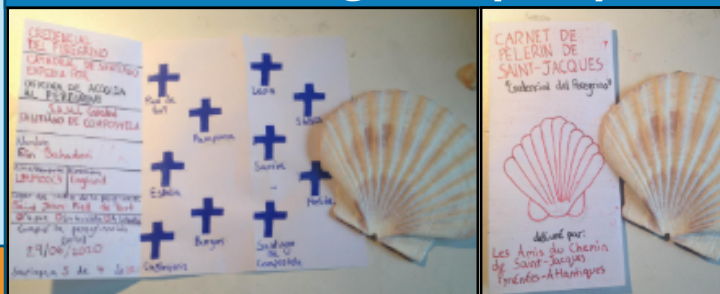

Thou art a fool-born baggage who smells like a cabbage.

Thou art a flap-mouthed giglet who looks like a piglet.

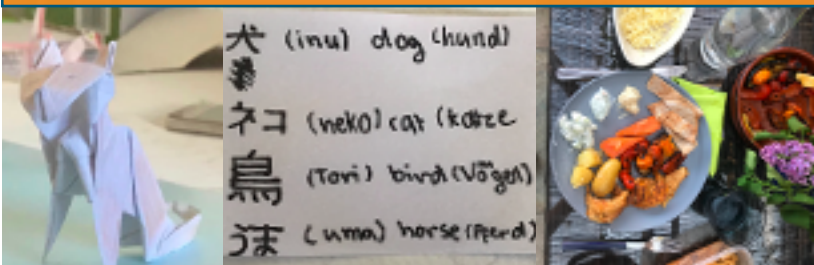

Thou art a hasty-witted hedge-pig with legs like a twig.

Thou art a boil-brained wench more stupid than a bench.
